【范文 1】

Facing Pressure in Life

With the development of our society, people pay more and more attention to the topic of pressure. It has a great influence on our society and life.

How should we deal with it? people come up with various opinions, I am inclined to the following ones. First of all, we should often communicate with our friends and parents as much as possible when we meet difficulty and trouble. What's more, we should learn to relax ourselves and take exercises to release the pressure. Last but not least, we must try our best to find out the real cause of pressure and see whether you can do something to make a change.

As far as I am concerned, this issue is quite significant to us. We should attach enough importance to it and make full use of all the means. Only in this way can the present situation really be improved.

Facing Pressure in Life

It is well known that the topic of pressure has become the public focus in today's society. This is a vital problem, which is closely related to people's life.

As for the settlement of the problem, people come up with various opinions. I am inclined to the following ones. First of all, we should often communicate with our friends and parents as much as possible when we meet difficulty and trouble. What's more, we should learn to relax ourselves and take exercises to release the pressure. Last but not least, we must try our best to find out the real cause of pressure and see whether you can do something to make a change.

All the ways sound good. I believe the first is the best one. It is more effective and practical than other ways. But we should never neglect the other ones. If we can make full use of them, the problem will be solved soon.

Shared Bikes

It is well known that the topic of shared bikes has become the public focus in today's society. This is a vital problem, which is closely related to people's life.

It is widely believed that that shared bikes can bring us a lot of benefits. For one thing, shared bikes are good for the environment and traffic. Traffic jams and air pollution can be reduced greatly because of them. For another, shared bikes can make our life much more convenient. They are available in many places around us.

However, advantages always coexist with disadvantages. It is not hard to imagine that other people have opposite opinions. They emphasize shared bikes have some negative aspects. On the one hand, shared bikes are often parked at random, which affects the look of city seriously. On the other hand, many bikes are often stolen and damaged owing to lack of enough supervision and management.

Taking into account all these factors, both views have strong foundation. However, weighing up these two arguments, I am more inclined to the former one. It is much more persuasive.

Shared Bikes

With the development of our society, people pay more and more attention to the topic of shared bikes. From different angles and positions, people come up with various opinions.

Many people hold the opinion that shared bikes can bring us a lot of benefits. For one thing, shared bikes are good for the environment and traffic. Traffic jams and air pollution can be reduced greatly because of them. For another, shared bikes can make our life much more convenient. They are available in many places around us.

As the saying goes, everything has two side. Other people don't agree with the above points. They claim shared bikes have some negative aspects. On the one hand, shared bikes are often parked at random, which affects the look of city seriously. On the other hand, many bikes are often stolen and damaged owing to lack of enough supervision and management.

All the opinions sound good. It is hard to choose the best of them. We must make a clear analysis between them, make full use of the positive aspects and avoid bad effects.

How to Treat the Generation Gap Between Parents and Children

With the development of our society, people pay more and more attention to the topic of the generation gap between parents and children. It has a great influence on our society and life.

How should we deal with it? people come up with various opinions, I am inclined to the following ones. First of all, parents and children should communicate with each other as much as possible instead of keeping silent when they have conflicts. What's more, they should spend much more time accompanying each other. For example, they should often have a chat and travel together. Last but not least, they should understand each other. Parents should try to learn and accept some new things while children should also see the value of the "old ideas".

As far as I am concerned, this issue is quite significant to us. We should attach enough importance to it and make full use of all the means. Only in this way can the present situation really be improved.

How to Treat the Generation Gap Between Parents and Children

It is well known that the topic of generation gap has become the public focus in today's society. This is a vital problem, which is closely related to people's life.

As for the settlement of the problem, people come up with various opinions. I am inclined to the following ones. First of all, parents and children should communicate with each other as much as possible instead of keeping silent when they have conflicts. What's more, they should spend much more time accompanying each other. For example, they should often have a chat and travel together. Last but not least, they should understand each other. Parents should try to learn and accept some new things while children should also see the value of the "old ideas".

All the ways sound good. I believe the first is the best one. It is more effective and practical than other ways. But we should never neglect the other ones. If we can make full use of them, the problem will be solved soon.

姓名: Effects of TV Programs

With the development of our society, people pay more and more attention to the topic of TV programs. From different angles and positions, people come up with various opinions.

Many people hold the opinion that some TV programs can give us a lot of positive energy. On the one hand, some entertainment programs are so wonderful and interesting that they can help us release pressure. On the other hand, we can learn some excellent quality and spirit from the interview programs, which can make us stronger and more optimistic.

As the saying goes, everything has two sides. Other people don't agree with the above points. They claim some TV programs have many negative aspects. For one thing, some TV programs are full of vulgar taste and they can't bring any good influence to people. For another, people spend too much time watching such programs, which disturbs their normal their study and life quite seriously.

All the opinions sound good. It is hard to choose the best of them. We must make a clear analysis between them, make full use of the positive aspects and avoid bad effects.

Effects of TV Programs

It is well known that the topic of TV programs has become the public focus in today's society. This is a vital problem, which is closely related to people's life.

It is widely believed that that some TV programs can give us a lot of positive energy. On the one hand, some entertainment programs are so wonderful and interesting that they can help us release pressure. On the other hand, we can learn some excellent quality and spirit from the interview programs, which can make us stronger and more optimistic.

However, advantages always coexist with disadvantages. It is not hard to imagine that other people have opposite opinions. They claim some TV programs have many negative aspects. For one thing, some TV programs are full of vulgar taste and they can't bring any good influence to people. For another, people spend too much time watching such programs, which disturbs their normal their study and life quite seriously.

Taking into account all these factors, both views have strong foundation. However, weighing up these two arguments, I am more inclined to the former one. It is much more persuasive.
